

“I believe that 9-hole golf courses are the future of golf. Recent research has shown that nowadays many golfers can’t spare the time to play 18 holes of golf taking four to five hours. We don’t need longer courses, what we need is more interesting courses and this specific Living Legends design is a masterpiece.”

– Peter Harradine

Harradine creating Living Legends at Dubailand

PETER HARRADINE, one of the world’s leading golf course designers, is once again at the forefront of golf’s development in the Middle East as construction begins on the Living Legends project at Dubailand.

Harradine Golf are working on the 9-hole course, plus Golf Academy, including a pitch-and-putt course, putting green and driving range, which will be the centrepiece of the development by Tanmiyat Global, expected to be up and running next year.

Peter Harradine has a track record as a golf course architect second to none in the Middle East.

When golf courses in the region were in their infancy in the late 1980s and 1990s he designed the 9-hole course at Jebel Ali, the National course at Abu Dhabi Golf Club, home of the Abu Dhabi HSBC Golf Championship for the past 10 years and the Doha Golf Club course, venue of the Commercial Bank Qatar Masters for the past 18 years. Harradine Golf also designed the 18-hole Sahara Golf Course in Kuwait, the 18-hole “Al Hamra” course in Ras Al Khaimah, the 9-hole Sharjah Golf and Shooting Club course and recently re-designed and created the 9-hole course at The Track, Meydan Golf.

“I believe that 9-hole golf courses are the future of golf,” says Peter Harradine. “Recent research has shown that nowadays many golfers can’t spare the time to play 18 holes of golf taking four to five hours.

“We don’t need longer courses, what we need is more interesting courses and this specific Living Legends design is a masterpiece.”

Four Lakes

Designed to attract visitors, residents and tourists, the Living Legends Golf Course will provide a testing yet fun challenge, bringing four lakes into play.

Mohammed Bin Odah, CEO of Tanmiyat Global, commented: “We have no doubt that with Peter Harradine and his team on board, Living Legends Golf Course will become one of Dubai’s most popular golfing destinations. Harradine has a unique vision and has created a refreshing alternative to Dubai’s 18-hole courses, that will attract not just Living Legends residents, but golfers from throughout the region and tourists alike.”

The Living Legends Golf Course development will encompass a cosmopolitan community, which comprises 500 villas and 12 apartment towers, along with a community clubhouse, shopping mall, boutique hotel, schools and clinics.

Saleh Tabekh, CEO of Delta International Real Estate, commented: “The Living Legends Golf Course will add immense value to the unique Living Legends lifestyle, providing an outstanding sporting facility, social hub and stunning views.”

Living Legends is a pioneering mixed-use property community development spanning 14,442,030.215 square feet in Dubailand, located just 15 minutes from downtown Dubai and only 25 minutes from Dubai International Airport.

